Using both is a simple and powerful point. I agree w Jim's suggestion.

I also agree that's important supporting evidence inasmuch as people will regard the registration advantage as initially suspect given the statewide realities of voter registration numbers.

When Nathan and I counted earlier, I thought we counted 11 of 13 districts with a Democratic registration advantage. I could be wrong but it's worth double checking. I do think the registration advantage is the best aspect to focus on to emphasize competitiveness. It provides the best evidence of pure partisan comparison and serves in my estimation as a strong legal argument and easily comprehensible political talking point.

Fellows

Here is my best effort to reflect what I have been told about legislative intent for the congressional plans. Please send me your suggestions and I will circulate a revised version for final approval by Bob and David as soon as possible tomorrow morning.
